Market Alert Update

Bananas

We wanted to alert you that over the past few weeks we have encountered rain and colder temperatures in the growing regions of Guatemala, Costa Rica, and Mexico. Due to the nature of these weather conditions, the overall production of bananas has been negatively affected. At this time, we are also noticing inconsistency in quality of the product. As a result, please be aware that you may see quality and supply issues over the next few weeks. As conditions remain less than favorable, we will continue to seek alternative sourcing if possible and will continue to carefully monitor the market for signs of improvement. Thank you for your ongoing business and know that we will keep you updated on any further developments.
